SNAPDRAGONS JOKE

A blonde walked into a diner and ordered a cup of coffee.
When she gets her drink, she notices that it has a “contest game piece” on the side of the cup.

She peels off the sticker and instantly starts screaming, “I won a motor home!” She continues shouting,

“I won a motor home!”

until the waitress decides to get her boss.

“What’s the problem here?” the manager asks.

I won a motor home!” she shouts again.

“That’s impossible!” he replies.

“We didn’t give out motor homes.”

She says, “Well, it says so on this sticker.”

The boss takes the sticker and reads it.

It says

“Win a bagel.”

Thank you to Tim Bull, State Member for Gippsland East, the Bairnsdale RSL and other community sponsors, who fund and deliver the Arthur Grassby Kokoda Scholarship to Year 11 students across East Gippsland.

Well done to Omeo's Danny Lee for being one of the successful recipients, who will join nine other students from East Gippsland, walking the Kokoda Trail in June-July this year.

As written on the Arthur Grassby Kokoda Scholarship web page, recipients will be following in the footsteps of the brave soldiers of the 39th and 2/14th Battalions—many of whom were Gippslanders—scholarship recipients experience firsthand the challenges faced by those who fought for our freedom. This journey is more than a trek; it's a pilgrimage, a tribute to sacrifice, a lesson in resilience, and a path to personal growth.

Bravery Rewarded—Silver Medal to Matron of Omeo Hospital

Miss Phyllis Lee, who was matron of the Omeo hospital in January last, when a tornado of fire swept Omeo during the disastrous bush fires on 13 January, has been awarded the silver medal of the Royal Humane Society of Australia for bravery. After the adult patients had been removed Matron Lee dashed into the burning building to rescue an infant and brought it out through the flames. Despite the risk of being trapped in the blazing building Matron Lee refused to leave until all the patients had been removed. Sister Hodgson who was the only member of the staff on duty with Matron Lee when the fire broke out in the hospital was also recognised for her bravery and was awarded the bronze medal of the association. Messrs R. Cousins and T.J. Rennick who drove to the hospital and removed the patients and staff in a car received bronze medals. It will be remembered that whilst the patients were being transferred from the hospital to the car the heat was intense and the wind so strong and laden with burning fragments that water had to be played on the car to prevent it from catching on fire. Before removing the patients an attempt was made to fight the flames in the hospital but efforts of the two women and two men had to be abandoned. The removal of the patients was then carried out with remarkable speed and they were conveyed to the temporary hospital.

Darren Chester
Federal Member for Gippsland

HON DARREN CHESTER MP
DEPUTY LEADER OF THE NATIONALS
SHADOW MINISTER FOR AGRICULTURE, FISHERIES AND FORESTRY
FEDERAL MEMBER FOR GIPPSLAND
LETTER TO THE EDITOR: MORE BOOTS, LESS SUITS 27 APRIL 2026

Lost in the commentary of green extremists is one simple fact: the greatest threat to biodiversity is the pest plants and animals which continue to impact vast areas of rural and regional Australia.

Rather than parading around the world with Ministers attending costly global summits, it's time for the Albanese Government to focus on cleaning up our own backyard.

The CSIRO has found invasive species cost Australia more than $25 billion in lost agricultural production each year and remain the biggest risk for the extinction of native species.

Regional Australia needs its own positive environmental agenda which focuses on practical outcomes, science-led solutions and delivering the jobs our communities need.

As a nation, we need more boots and less suits. That's more boots on the ground in the regions undertaking practical environmental projects like invasive species control, and less suits in the cities making excuses for the lack of action. The real environmentalists in Australia are the farmers, trappers, hunters, Landcare and Coastcare volunteers who get their hands dirty and undertake pest weed and animal control along with revegetation and other activities to support native species. If we are expected to be the custodians of a vast public land estate in regional Australia, we should benefit from more jobs on the ground to properly care for the environment and undertake more invasive species control programs. Whether it's pigs, deer, feral cats, rabbits, foxes, carp, wild dogs, fire ants or pest weeds, the Federal Government needs to be working in partnership with the states and natural resource management groups to control their damaging impacts.

Negotiating a partnership with willing states to lock in long-term funding for control programs and natural resource management roles to leverage the efforts of volunteers and landholders, will deliver the environmental outcomes and the sustainable jobs our younger voters are demanding. Again, it's regional people who are the practical environmentalists undertaking the majority of paid and voluntary work at the moment but funding is often short-term and delivered through ad hoc grants programs.

The Federal Budget should prioritise biocontrol measures and practical projects which make a difference on the ground, and support the efforts of regional Australians to care for the environment, while they provide the food security for our nation.
